

Franz Tödttling is retired Professor at the Vienna University of Economics and Business. His main research areas cover regional development, clusters, innovation systems, the knowledge economy and transformative change from a multi-scalar perspective. He has been involved in a number of international research projects and published a large number of articles in refereed professional journals. Publications also include co-published books such as "Regional Knowledge Economies" (2008) and the "Handbook of Regional Innovation and Growth" (Cooke et al., 2012) as well as numerable chapters in edited volumes.